India's culture seeks to strike roots through mothers and the children on their laps. Women have been its custodians and promoters; men have a secondary role. And among women, girl students who will be women leaders in the coming days, must understand and practise this culture, so that it may be preserved and it may flourish. The keenness to acquire education is now very evident among the daughters of the nation and so, great hope can be placed on them in this field of reconstruction. Education must be for life, not for a living. Women in Indian history have proved throughout the centuries that they have the courage, the vision, and the intelligence needed to dive into the depths of spiritual science and discipline. Meera, Andal, Maitreyi, Gargi, Sulabha, Choodala and Mahadevi are sterling examples of mighty heroines who undertook the spiritual adventure of God-realisation.
